Summary of Information

The target contains a containment apparatus of some kind reminiscent of a cage and/or tank. There are numerous types of animals here. One animal within a tank appears with its head in profile breaking through the surface.

Perceptions included: additional moving heads in profile; different living places (different in the sense of environments or ecosystems/settings); human or humans "in charge" with a specialized training; a sense of enjoyment and entertainment quality to the target; and the handing over or transferring of something (this is reminiscent of a diver hand feeding fish or animals underwater).

One specific locale within the target is dark, cold, green and wet. Many objects occurring within the target have a natural layered or fibered quality to them. These objects are reminiscent of large, exposed animal bones which someone or something is looking at. There is a wrinkled aspect to one of the objects here. The concept of "freeze-frame" is important to an individual. Another individual (maybe myself) is heard to exclaim of an "inability to hear a 1000 stars". Another area of the target is very cold and "would be a place where one would expect to see a dog team (huskys)".

There is a flashing light which is yellowish-white. There are claw-like appendages which are opening and closing. There is a luminescent yellow arrow. There is a large, flexible sheet of transparent material which something reminiscent of an animal keeps hopping up on or bouncing off of.

A confusing myriad of animals all appeared at once as if superimposed on one another. These included a baboon or ape, reptiles, a turtle, a porpoise, rays, bears and more apes. A mixture of horses and men appeared early on in the session.
